BALCRANK'S DUNIGAN OFF TO A FAST START...

Tim Dunigan (r), Balcrank Eastern Region Manager, discusses his significant lubrication equipment order with General Sales Manager Roy Mendenhall (l). Tim's knowledge of our competitors' equipment, combined with hard work and professional salesmanship, awarded him and Balcrank the lubrication equipment order for the City of Philadelphia bus garage (and that's a lot of buses!). Keep up the good work, Tim!

Word has it that there is a recession being planned...

We have decided not to participate!

DO YOU KNOW HOW WALL STREET GOT ITS NAME? In the mid 17th century, New York City was a rather primitive place and livestock roamed the streets freely. In 1653, the early Dutch settlers built a wall down a street on New York's lower east side to keep the livestock out of the business and residential area. The wall was 1,340 feet long and 14 feet high; and although it no longer stands, the name "Wall Street" remains to this day.

REMINDER TO CREDIT UNION MEMBERS . . .

Don't forget to attend the annual meeting of the WFI Credit Union Sunday, March 23, 1:30 p.m., St. Hedwig Hall (South Scott Street, South Bend).

SPEAKING OF GASOLINE AND OIL SHORTAGES . . .

Why doesn't someone find out how Columbus and his men were able to cross the Atlantic on only three galleons?

SWISS GNP LEADS WORLD . . . Switzerland has overtaken Kuwait as the world's richest nation, based on gross national product per inhabitant, the Union Bank of Switzerland reported recently. The U.S. ranked eighth. In 1978 the Union Bank says, national income in Switzerland amounted to $13,853 per inhabitant, a 39 per cent increase over 1977.

Kuwait, in second place, had a per person GNP of $13,000. Denmark was third with $10,948. Fourth was Sweden ($10,440) and West Germany was fifth ($10,415). The U.S. figure was $9,646, which was also less than Belgium ($9,939) and Norway ($9,849). Rounding out the top ten were the Netherlands ($9,367) and Saudi Arabia ($9,330).

PUZZLE OF THE WEEK . . .

The following brain teaser was submitted by Dick Fenska:

A gardener wants to plant 5 straight rows of trees. Each row will have four trees. He has only 10 trees. How does he accomplish this project?

Solution to last week's puzzle:
Mr. Anderson is the sailor; Barlow the tailor; Coutts, thief; Davies, beggarman; Eastley, tinker and Foley the soldier.

IT'S THE LUCK OF THE HORNETS . . . "The Irish, it turns out, are not always lucky. Even leprechauns are out to lunch now and then. How else do you explain Notre Dame letting a man like Kevin Loder get away?" asks Gib Twyman, sportswriter for the Kansas City Star. Twyman's March 13 column featured the young man from Cassopolis, who just happens to be the son of Plant 2 Melter Tamper Loder. Kevin, 6-foot-6 forward for Alabama State, was cited as the best player in the recently held National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament.

A marketing major who carries a 2.9 grade-point average, Kevin was a third-team all-state split end, stand-out baseball player and top-seeded tennis player in high school.
