CUSTOMER SERVICE . . . Last week we brought to your attention an example of outstanding service that Larry Huemmer gave to one of our equipment customers. Another case of this responsiveness comes from The Hastings Company in King, North Carolina. Bob McGee, Assistant Plant Manager, has singled out Howard Hull, Supervisor-Parts Sales, for helping them during an emergency breakdown:

"On Saturday, 15 March, 1980, I contacted Mr. Howard Hull of your company regarding some Barrel Head Plates we had ordered to repair our wheelabrator. Due to an emergency situation I had to telephone Mr. Hull while he was at home. He returned to the plant, located the shipping information I inquired about and called the info back to me. As the result of his endeavor, I was able to locate the barrel head plate in Chicago. Working with the airlines we received the plates at 2:30 P.M. on Saturday, 15 March, otherwise we would not have received the plates until Monday, 17 March. This allowed us to repair our wheelabrator over the weekend and were ready to stock production on Monday morning.

"I would like to apologize to Mr. Hull for having to contact him on Saturday morning. Also, I would like to say "Thanks" for helping us solve an emergency problem. The extra effort he demonstrated was very much appreciated by The Hastings Company.

"Thanks again."

By Howard's willingness to put in some extra time on Saturday, he enabled the customer to be in production on Monday morning. It is this attention to a customer's needs that enhances our company's reputation and provides more business for all of us during this period of tightening economic conditions.

The customer has extended his thanks to Howard for this emergency help and we do too!
